Ontario Swine Producer Visits Pamplin

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Miller and their two sons of Kerwood, Ontario, Canada, have spent the past several days visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gunn of Pamplin.

The Millers are purebred swine breeders who raise Yorkshires, Hampshires, Duroc and Landrace breeds of hogs.

The Millers farm - Kerridge Acres - is located approximately 30 miles north of Port Huron, Michigan in Southern Ontario. The farm consists of 280 acres and includes about 120 sows and 30-40 head of beef cattle.

Offered for sale on the Miller Farm are purebred boars and gilts, as well as crossbred gilts and crossbred boars. Boars are tested on the farm as well as in government operated testing stations. Production sales are also held on the farm each year.

A special dinner gathering for area swine producers was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Gunn on Monday evening. Attending were pork producers from the Piedmont Area of Virginia and John Parker of the Virginia Pork Commission.

Several interesting points were brought out in informal discussion. Mandating procedures were mentioned and Miller noted that all market hogs are sold on a grade and yield basis in Canada with carcass weight and back fat being the key factors determining prices. This system is, of course, different from those used in Virginia where hogs are evaluated according to weight of live animal.

FINDS BALLOON ON FARM

Mr. Junior W. Pannell of Red House found a balloon which was sent out by Rev. Larry Henderson and the Gospel Baptist Church of 1415 Florida Avenue, Lynchburg, on his farm near Red House.

According to the card on the balloon, the person finding it should mail it in because prizes would be given to the one from the greatest distance. The name on this card was Marcus Mitchell.

HERE'S THE DRILL

If you had to invest in just one tool for your home workshop, most experts agree that the one you should buy is a variable speed drill.

Versatility is the key—like being able to use a wide variety of accessories for power filing, sanding, polishing, as well as using hole saws, counter sinks, screwdriver bits, etc. Further, a reversible drill can remove screws or jammed drill bits.

With a Variable speed drill, you can increase the speed as you tighten your squeeze on the trigger or you can pre-set and lock into a specific speed. This variable speed feature is ideal for drilling in a wide variety of materials—wood, plastic, metal, masonry or glass.

Some extra good news for home workshop enthusiasts is that Rockwell is offering a special Value Pack this Spring, which includes their versatile 1/2 Inch Adjustable Variable Speed Reversing Drill (Model 4250-1) plus their new Model 4900 Electric Engraver—an extra $8.99 value when you purchase the versatile 1/2 inch drill at the manufacturer's list price of $39.99. The Electric Engraver permanently engraves metal, glass, plastic and wood. Use to discourage theft by permanently marking your valuables, remind borrowers where to return tools, prevent property mix-ups, personalize gifts, ideal for home, workshop or office. Replaceable carbide point, adjustable depth of cut, pencil grip design for sure control. U. L. Listed.

The Rockwell 1/2 inch drill's dependable ball thrust bearing, double reduction gears and a three-jaw geared chuck are evidence of the tool's quality and ability to stand up to frequent drilling in hard materials. This is an easy way to find out if you're getting your money's worth out of any tool.

A HIGH FEATURE DRILL lets you increase speeds simply by squeezing the trigger, or pre-set and lock into a specific speed.

The Pastor Speaks

Wednesday, May 31, is the Feast Day of the Visitation of the Blessed Virgin Mary. On this occasion Mary visited her cousin Elizabeth.

Like so many other events this one has very little historical significance but a lot of theological significance.

The Evangelist, in this case St. Luke, write heavily around the birth of Jesus. He and St. Matthew are the only two who did. St. Luke records this visitation story. His being the only one does not negate its authenticity, but it does at least bring it into question. The point, however, is that we are not looking for history. We are looking for the effect Jesus had on the writers and on the infant Church.

After Pentecost when the meaning of Jesus unfolded in the mids of the Apostles they realized that Jesus He and St. Matthew are the only two who did. St. Luke records this visitation story. His being the only one does not negate its authenticity, but it does at least bring it into question. The point, however, is that we are not looking for history. We are looking for the effect Jesus had on the writers and on the infant Church.

After Pentecost when the meaning of Jesus unfolded in the mids of the Apostles they realized that Jesus He and St. Matthew are the only two who did. St. Luke records this visitation story. His being the only one does not negate its authenticity, but it does at least bring it into question. The point, however, is that we are not looking for history. We are looking for the effect Jesus had on the writers and on the infant Church.

St. Paul had earlier given us the concept of the Church as the Body of Christ and certainly the body of Jesus issued from the womb of Mary. Mary was chosen. The Church is the agent through whom God continues to come into the world. The Church is chosen. And as the chosen Mary said of herself, "Be it unto me according to thy word"; so the Church must say. Mary freely gives up herself to the working of God's grace and so must the Church.

When Mary visited Elizabeth we find in both Elizabeth's greeting and in the great hymn of the Magnificat the word "Blessed" . . "Blessed art thou among women" and " . . . from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed." Mary's blessedness foreshadows the blessedness of the Church - not an earthly happiness but a participation in the joyous self-giving of God. This is the lefty vocation of the Church.

The Church which gathers to celebrate our Lord's nativity, Circumcision, Transfiguration, Crucifixion, Resurrection and Ascension is at one and the same time the Christ in the world today taking into that world the Good News of Salvation through word and deed, and the Church is also our Mother who with the Holy Spirit continually begets us, nourishes us, and teaches us to prepare us for our mission of reconciliation.

and offer sacrifices. "Men, why are you doing this?" they cried. "We also are men, of like nature with you, and bring you good news, that you should turn from these vain things to a living God..." (14:15).

You are witnesses

Yes, Paul and Barnabas were men just as the Lystrians were. Yet, there was a difference, too, a difference the Lystrians misinterpreted. They saw the Holy Spirit moving in them and assumed that these two men were gods come to earth. But the "difference" they saw in Paul and Barnabas was not that "gods have come down in the likeness of men," but that in these two men the likeness of God was being made manifest. The promise that Jesus had given his disciples was that they would become God's sons by virtue of his Sonship.

The writer of Genesis was convinced that man was created in God's own image and Jesus displayed perfectly the full extent of that divine image that can be realized in the life of every person.

We have spent enough time casting God in man's likeness. The time has come to let the divine likeness shine forth in man.

THE DIVINE LIKENESS

Lesson for June 4, 1978

Background Scripture: Acts 13 through 14.
Devotional Reading: Isaiah 52:7-10

Rev. Althouse

Two things amaze me as I encounter people throughout the world. One is the amount of skepticism I find—call that "unbelief" if you like—the other is the amount of credulity—or "overbelief."

Some religious observers are calling ours "the age of unbelief." So much has been discarded or discredited that once we held sacred. Churches are losing ground in terms of church membership and the temporal as well as the spiritual power of religion seems to have slipped so greatly.

We also are men

Yet, at the same time I am often amazed at the credulity I find. Some people, it seems, will believe anything they are told. They will follow blindly the leadership of a religious or totalitarian leader. They will send their money to religious groups that are scarcely more than a name to them. The field ripest for sheer fraud and exploitation, it seems, is still religion.

This was also the experience sometimes of the early church. There were times when it must have seemed to Paul, for example, that there was absolutey no receptivity to his message of Christ. But there were other times and other places where the response was too much belief instead of too little.

One of these times and places was at Lystra during Paul's first missionary journey. Because he healed a man who had been crippled from birth, the people of Lystra jumped to the conclusion that he and Barnabas were gods deed, and the Church is also our Mother who with the Holy Spirit continually begets us, nourishes us, and teaches us to prepare us for our mission of reconciliation.

Paul and Barnabas were shocked and it was only with great effort that they persuaded the Lystrians not to worship them
